DAILEY COMMITTED TO THE TOMBS.

Coroner Martin yesterday finished the inquest regarding the death of Louis Wolters, the carpenter, who was rished in Buddensiek's fallen houses. The first witness called was William H. Cernet, of No. 454 West Fiftieth-st., who tostified that he was a dealer in sand. Just one hour after the building in Sixty-second-st. had fallen. Buddensiek's foreman came to his place and ordered a load of sand. "I objected te furnishing the sand," he said, "because I had never had any the sand," he said, "because I had never had any the sand," he said, "because I had never had any the begin after his buildings had fallen." Notwithstandings with Buddensiek's people and didn't want to begin after his buildings had fallen." Notwithstanding his objection the foreman got a load of sand from his place without his consent. When he visited the scene of the necedent he saw the load of sand in Tenth-ave, near Sixty-second-st.; he also saw about three loads of sand that he thought had been furnished by Thomas Buckley. While the men were at work on the Sixty-second-st, buildings, he had often seen them mix mortar without sand.

Robert V. Mackey, the indicted examiner of buildings, testified that on January 19 he reported to Inspector D'Oench that the easterly gable of the fallen buildings was unsafe. It bulged badly. He had also reported the unsafe condition of the rear walls. He waited for the Inspector to do something, and then ordered braces put against the walls. Theodore W. Dailey, the other indicted examiner, testified that so far as he knew Mr. Hang was the owner. He had seen Buddensiek standing around the buildings, but never saw him give any orders. Dailey said he knew little about massonwerk, and nothing at all about the ingredients used in making mortar. Fire Commissioner Van Coroner Martin intimated that he would call Mr. Buddensiek as a witness, but Buddensiek's counsel, Mr. Moore, objected to his client going on the stand. Sub-centractor Charles Franck said he was a boss bricklayers' Union. Hi DAILEY COMMITTED TO THE TOMBS.

retired at 2 o clock and three this verdict:

ThatLouis Welters died from injuries received by the fall of the buildings at Sixty-second-st., between Tenth and Eleventh avea, on April 13, 1885, which buildings appear by the application to the Department of Buildings appear by the expection of the same, as being owned by Gothold Haug, but which we believe by the evidence and our own judgment are owned by Charles A. Buddensisk, or some other party or parties for whom he was execting them, but that said Buddensiek was the centrolling spirit in the exection of above buildings, which for defiance of law, experience and common sense, call for the flance of law, experience and common sense, call for the severest punishment the law can inflict; and we believe that the respensibility for the death of Louis Wolters rests primarily upon said Buddensick, and to a certain extent also upon Charles Franck for the reason that they cassed to be used and did use labor and materials that they knew to be totally unfit to enter into the construction of any building whatever.

untit to enter into the construction of any outside ware ever.

The jury also believe that to the incompetency and neglect of duty of the examiners, Daliey and Mackey, in a great measure is also due the responsibility for the death of said Wolters.

The jury further flud the examination to have clearly established the fact that the Department of Buildings of this city should be an organization of a character and invested with a power commensurate with the dignity and necessities of a great and growing metropolis like New-York, and one under whose administration the construction of anything in the least degree analogous to such structures could not be even begun much less proceed to such an extent as attained by these buildings prior to their fail and those equally bad, and now allowed to stand.

prior to their fail and those equally bad, and now allowed to stand.

We find culpable negligence and looseness of discipline and supervisory control that could have retained in responsible positions servants whese capacity could permit the crection under its eyes of buildings that shame all mechanical instincts.

The jury carnesity arge upon public attention the importance of securing for our city by prompt legislative action the exercise of a rigid and intelligent control over all future constructions of buildings, and advise a department of buildings under one responsible head, an appointee of the Mayor, as the best means of securing for the citizens of New-York good and sufficient building laws.

Corener Martin after the verdict had been read said to the jury: The verdict you have made gives me the power to order the arrest of Charles A. Buddensiek, Charles Franck, Gothold Haug, Robert V. Mackey and Thomas W. Dailey, and I will taske out a committment and place it in the hands of Captain Killilea and have them committed to the Tunibe without had.

Foreman Charles Franck yesterday furnished the $10,000 bail required on the indictment against him for manslaughter in causing the death of Walters. The bondsmen are Wilhelm Becker, No. 1,407 Second-ave.; William Cohen, No. 168 East Seventy-second-st.; and John E. Sturk, No. 174 East Eighty-seventh-st.

THE ROLLER-SKATING RINK DID IT. DOUBLE ELOPEMENT IN BROOKLYN-TWO YOUNG GIRLS MARRY RINK ACQUAINTANCES.

The roller-skating rink is held responsible for a double elopement which occurred in Brooklyn on Sunday. Among the pretty girls who have attracted attention at the Lee Avenue Rink have been Maud McAllaster, age fifteen, and Eria Jones, age eighteen. Among the young men who sought their company were William E. Darling and Charles L. Packham. Darling is twenty-two years old and his friend is nineteen. The girls frequented the rink together, and while there with young Peckham a few weeks ago Miss Jones met a young man uamed Farren. He escorted her home and soon became engaged to marry her, giving her a ring. On Saturday Miss Jones returned the ring and said that she would only be his friend in the future, as she was about to be married. Peckham had induced the girl to elope with him. He then arrauged with Darling to be married at the same time. Darling secured a promise of marriage from Maud McAllaster, and on Sanday afteraoon he went to the house of the Rev. J. J. White, pastor of the Fourth Street Methodist Protestant Church, at No. 96 South Third-st., and asked him if he would marry the two couples. Mr. White questioned him, and learning that some of them were minors, asked if they had their parents' consent. The answer conveyed the impression that the parents were willing, and Darling assured Mr. White that both he and his friend were able to support their wives. GIRLS MARRY RINK ACQUAINTANCES.

were willing, and Darling asserted six, white that both he and his friend were able to support their wives.

Soon afterward the two couples went to the parsonage, Miss McAllaster and Darling were married first, the other couple being the witnesses; and then Mr. and Mrs. Darling acted a witnesses; and then Mr. and Mrs. Darling acted a witnesses while Miss Jones was made Mrs. Peckham. Mr. White did not lears until afterward that the parents of the girls objected to the marriages. Mrs. Darling went home after a bridal trip to church for evening service and some ice cream later and her parents did not learn what she had done until the next day, when Mrs. Peckham told all that had occurred to a married daughter of Mrs. McAllaster. The McAllaster girl was persuaded that she had taken a foolish step and declared that she would not live with her husband. She sent him a note yesterday saying that she had not considered what she was doing when she married him and would have nothing to do with him. Her parents will take action to have her marriage declared void on the grounds that she is under sixteen years of age and did not have her parents' consent. Mrs. Peckham told her parents she would not give up her husband and it was reported that she had been told to leave her home, at No. 189 Rutledge-st., Miss McAllaster and her parents live at No. 45 Rush-st.

MR. SQUIRE ON WASTING CROTON WATER. Commissioner Squire, in a printed circular regarding the proper appliances for saving Croton water, says that the 10,000 meters which cost the city $1,400,000 should be utilized. Much waste is due to defective prumbing, and much more to carelessness. With the consumption reduced to what is actually needed, a saving of 30 per cent can be effected. The average daily consumption since January 1 has been about $0 gallons per capita, while in the extremes of hot and cold weather it rises to 100 gallons. Assuming that at least five years will elap-e before an additional supply can be received through the new aqueduct, and estimating the annual increase in the population of the city at 50,000, it will be necessary. Mr. Squire says, in order to maintain the present pressure in the mains, to reduce the daily consumption per capita during that period to 76½ gallons in the first year; 73½ gallons in the second; 71 1-3 in the third; 69 in the fourth, and 66% in the fifth. About one-fifth of the entire water supply is now used in 11,000 business houses which have been metered, the other four-fifths being distributed to more than 100,000 houses. Section 352 of the Consolidation Act provides that the Commissioner of Public Works has no authority to put in any water meter until the pattern and price have been approved by the Mayor, Controller and Chief Engineer of the Croton Aqueduct. CONROY SENTENCED FOR LIFE.

A plea of guilty of murder in the second degree was accepted by Assistant District-Attorney Fellows yesterday, in the Oyer and Terminer, from ex-Policeman William Conroy, in whose case a conviction of murder in the first degree was previously obtained, which was reversed by the General Term of the Supreme Court. Justice Van Brent said that in his epinion the punishment for murder in the second degree was not adequate to the crime committed. Hobelieved a jury would find Conroy guilty of murder in the first degree again, but as the General Term had decided the matter he would pronounce sentence on the plea now presented. "Conroy," said the Justice, "you have had a narrow escape from paying the penalty of your effence with your life, and I am by no means certain but what it would be just I and by no means certain but what it would be just I would have paid that penalty. I sentence you to confinement in the State Prison, at Sing Sing, for the term of your natural life." Conroy's crime was committed under circumstances of unusual attrective. While in uniform and intoxicated, he entered the trinking piace of Patrick Cedy, in East Thirty-

EMIGRANTS MUST PAY HIGHER RATES.

Another chapter was added yesterday to the intermittent steerage-rate war, that has been carried on by the Continental steamship lines for many morths past. The Hamburg-Asserican Line persistently refused to advance its rates as the other lines had done until yesterday when a cable dispatch authorized the old rates of $10 either way to to be revoked, and to charge the same rates as the North German Lloyd, namely: $15 for passage from New-York to Hamburg, tickets limited to six weeks from date of issue; and $18 for prepaid tickets (from Hamburg to New-York) limited to one year from date of issue. The new rates will go into effect after the sailing of the Westphalia, from this port, to-day, which takes out about 400 steerage passengers.

The Continental Conference, composed of all the Continental steamship lines, became disrupted in January, 1884, and in December steps were taken to reorganize it with the result of a new conference on annuary 1. To this the Carr Hamburg Line was admitted, and the Hamburg-American Line refused to join because the Carr Line was allowed a differential rate of $2 below the rates of the other lines. The new alliance was composed of the North German Lloyd, the Carr, the Red Star, the Retterdam, and the Italian lines. Rates were lowered until on February 1 all of the lines were selling steerage tickets at $10 either way. The reason for the advance since April was that the lines were not only losing money but they were getting more passengers than they could carry. EMIGRANTS MUST PAY HIGHER RATES.

UNSAFE TENEMENT-HOUSES.

UNSAFE TENEMENT-HOUSES.

The immates of the three-stery and attic tenement-house No. 165 Delancey-st, were ordered to vacate their rooms yesterday. A notice that the house was unsafe was posted on the front wall and Inspecter D'Oeneh sent word to Charles S. Brown. of No. 26 Pine-st., saying that the house must be pulled down without delay. Mr. Brown is executor of the McCarthy estate, to which the property belongs. Concerning the tenement-house one of the examiners of the Bureau of Buildings had written:

The foundation is decayed and broken to a dangerou extent; the beams and floors are in a similar condition. The corner column is out of plumb, and the whole structure is hanging ever in an unsafe position. The house is generally unsafe, beyond repair, and unit for the risk of life and limb.

The twe-story brick buildings Nos. 412 to 430 West Thirtieth-st., new occupied as stables and owned by the Hudson River Railroad Company, were condemned as unsafe on account of age yesterday and Inspector D'Ocach ordered the company to teat them down.

WORK ON THE NEW AQUEDUCT.

The aqueduct commission will on Friday and Saturday make a tour of inspection of the work already done on the new aqueduct. The contractors say that they will complete the work in the required time—thirty-three months from January 20, 1885. There are altogether twenty-six shafts and four portals along the line. Ten shafts have been sunk to the line of the grade of the aqueduct; most of these are near the lowerend where the work is easier. In some places along the upper part of the work the shafts will have to be sunk 400 feet. O'Brien & Clark have nearly 5,000 men employed, most of them Italian laborers, and Brown, Howard & Co, have mearly an equal number. The work will be carried forward by the aid of electric lights and the motive power to drive the drills and raise the debris to the surface of the shafts will be campressed air. For about seven-eights of the en-raise the debris to the surface of the shafts will be compressed air. For about seven-eights of the entire distance the tunnel will be carried through solid rock.

The contract for carrying the tunnel under the Harlem River has not yet been let, nor for the large gateway at the Crotea River. The water will be carried from One-hundred-and-thrity-seventh-st. to the large reservoir in Central Park in iron pipes. These will probably be put down by contract.

CHARGES AGAINST A POLICEMAN.

Alice Maguire stated to Commissioner Porter, who was acting as trial judge yesterday, that on April 7 she went with her sister to No. 420 West-st., where her husband is employed as a bartender, to get money to pay her board at No. 173 Perry-st. This was according to an agreemant which he made with her on September 8, 1884, promising to support her. She said that instead of complying with her request, her husband called in Officer Patrick McCullagh, of the Ninth Precinct, and had her put out of the grog shop, and McCullagh did this with great violence, throwing her down and jumping on her when he got her in the street. He then took her to the police station, but the sergeant refused to hold her. Her sister, Ann Van Pelt, said that McCullagh also clubbed her on the way to the station. Edward Eennett, a boy living at No. 173 Perry-st., said that when he went to see the officer take the woman into the station, he was clubbed about the legs. McCullagh denies that he used more violence than was necessary. The women fought and tried to take his club from him. He denied striking Bennett. Decision in the case was reserved. MRS. HUDSON WEEPS WHEN SENTENCED.

Mrs. Emma S. Hudson, who has been charged with swindling the proprietors of botels in Boston and in this city by not paying board bills, and who was recently convicted in the Court of General Sessions of stealing small articles of silverware from the house of Dr. Joseph E. Janvrin, No. 191 Madisonave, on March 9, was before Judge Cowing yesterday for sentence. The Judge said that it was not his place to inquire as to the rumors of her wrongdoing in Boston. The case was one in which a year's imprisonment might be given, but he thought a lighter sentence would be as effective. He sentenced Mrs. Hudson to three months in the Penitentiary. Mrs. Hudson wept while the Judge was talking, but her sixteen-years-old daughter, Amy, stood calmly beside her. Judge Cowing advised Mrs. Hudson to lead an honest life on her release from jail, and not to cause her young daughter to be brought into court by any misdoing in the future. MRS. STIRRING MUSIC FOR THE OLD GUARD.

The anniversary service of the Old Guard of this city took place yesterday at St. Paul's Church. Before reaching the church the command was reviewed by the Mayor from the steps of the City Hall. The Rev. Dr. James Mulchabey, pastor of St. Paul's Church, conducted the services, which began with Weber's "Oberon." played by Gilmore's Band. Later the band played "The Lost Chord," by Sailivan. The address to the Guard was by the Rev. Dr. Wilbur F. Watkins, acting chaplain of the Guard. The service ended with Handel's "Halleiljah Chorus," by the band. General Washington's former pew was tastefully decorated with flowers and flags, and attracted much attention. The church was crowded losg before the arrival of the Guard. P. S. Gilmore led his band and Leo Kofler was the organist and reusical director. STIRRING MUSIC FOR THE OLD GUARD.

SHALL THE MUSEUMS BE OPEN ON SUNDAY? A resolution offered by Commissioner Beekman was adopted yesterday by the Park Board requesting the trustees of the Meiropolitan Museum of Art and of the Museum of Natural firstory to open those institutions to the public on Sandays from 2 to 7 p. m. during the summer, and from 1:30 to 4:30 p. m. in the winter. The resolution said that this would give thousands of people a chance to visit the museums who have not the opportunity now. The plans of Theodore Weston, architect, for the addition to the Museum of Art, which is to cost $100,000, were approved and the for the addition to the Museum of Art, which is to cost $100,000, were appreved and the work will be done during the summer. Professor Bickmere was given authority to lecture at the Museum of Natural History on Decoration Day to the working men of Central Park on the history of the Obelisk, a request having been made by them to that effect.

OPENING A NEW BRANCH POST OFFICE. OPENING A NEW BRANCH POST OFFICE.

The Produce Exchange Branch Post Office was opened yesterday. It occupies a large room on the south side of the lower floor, and is fitted up with distributing boxes and individual letter boxes, and is under the supervision of Superintendent I homas Ackerman and Assistant Superintendent Jenkins. The rest of the force consists of two letter-carriers, three messengers and nine distributors. A patent mailing system has been put into the building with the approval of the Postmaster-General. It consists of a metal conductor, or flattened tube of special construction, faced with heavy plate glass, and running from the bottom to the top of the building. On each floor is an opening for depositing mail, which drops down the tube into a large box on the ground floor.

BRACKETT AND CHALKER'S DEFENCE.

Judge Benedict and a jury heard further evidence yesterday in the trial of Captains Brackett and Chalker on a charge of receiving a bribe of $3,000 for negiceting to report facts concerning alleged undervaluations of goods imported by Watson & Girdwood, linen importers. James Girdwood, a member of the firm, testified that he went to the special agents' office in February to inquire about the expenditure of money that he had given to the Richard D. Jackson, a lawyer, who was employed to obtain the release of a detained invoice. He spoke about a receipt for the money he had given to Jackson, and Captain Brackett, according to the witness, said: "Well, only $3,000 came to this office." or words of similar meaning. Captain Brackett then, according to the testimony, said to Capfain Chalker: "Trat's so, isn't it, Cap't to which Captain Chalker made an affirmative reply. Mr. Girdwood said on cross-examination by Colonel Bliss that he had been indicted for criminal undervaluation in connection with these importations, and had pleaded guilty. He was under that plea at the time of giving his testimony before the Grand Jury. He subsequently obtained leave to withdraw the plea of guilty. He misited, however, that the goods referred to were not undervalued.

Rozer M. Sherman made the opening address for Captain Brackett, and A. H. Purdy for Captain Chalker. Mr. Purdy then called Captain Chalker to the witness stand. He testified to his long and earnest efforts to secure evidence concerning the alleged undervaluation of the imported lineus. As to the conversation with Mr. Girdwood, he said that Mr. Girdwood had asked how much was due or had been paid to the Government, and that the answer was that about $2,000 had been paid, and that it would so appear by the report to the Government. Captain Chalker exhibited considerable feeling when asked a question that might imply a reflection on his honesty. The case was not finished. BRACKETT AND CHALKER'S DEFENCE.

A dozen dealers in coal and wood awaited the arrival of the committee on supplies at the hall of the Board of Education yesterday. In the spring the Beard advertises for propessis to furnish the coal and wood that are burned in all the school buildings during the year. The amount called for is about 14,000 tons of coal and 1,600 cords of wood. There were five proposals for the coal. The lowest, by Richard Hexter, was $4.02 a ton for white ask coal; Charles Dunlap, $4.23; H. L. Herbert & Co., $4.52; S. G. French, $4.12; Wmant & Ternune, $4.18. The proposals for the wood ran from $6.28 a cord for Virginia pine to $8; and from $5.95 for oak to $7. The committee will decide on the award at its next meeting.

Prior to that time the couple appeared to have lived happily together. The second wife caused the arrest of her husband on a charge of bigamy. He was tried, couvicted and sentenced to two years' imprisonment. On being discharged he called upon his second wife and begged her to live with hum again, which she refused to do. He then took the boy to Tuckahoe. Westchester County, where he was engaged in tending bar at the Underhill Road House Mrs. Reynolds. No. 2 began proceedings to get possession of the boy. Revnolds was atrested and arraigned before Justice Dykman for kidnapping the child, but the Justice decided that the father was the proper person to have the custody of the child, and Reynolds wasked out of the courtroom with him. Ex-Judge J. L. Baxter, of Queens County, who appeared as counsel for Mrs. Reynolds, denounced the decision of Justice Dykman as contrary to law and principle. In leaving the court room Reynolds used threatening language to Mr. Baxter. He was arrested, and will have a hearing to-day before Justice Paulding.

TRYING TO INCITE A RIOT.

The Long Island Railroad Company is building a deuble track from Valley Stream to Far Rockaway and until Monday employed fifty Italians to do the grading. The grading is nearly all completed and the foreman discharged twenty-five laborers and the interpreter, Antonio Lemonio, On Tuesday night the interpreter entered the freight-house at Far Rockaway, and flourishing a revolver in each hand threatened so kill the first man that went to work in the morning. Word was immediately sent to Superintendent Barton, who, with several officers, boarded an engine at Long Island City and went to Far Rockaway. The workmen all went to work yesterdny and Lemonio was arrested in Long Island City. At Police Headquarters two large thirty-two-calibre revolvers loaded were found on him. He will be arrangued before Justice Cavanagh this morning in Long Island City, charged with carrying concealed weapons, and then sent to TRYING TO INCITE A RIOT. anigh this morning in Long Island City, charged with carrying concealed weapons, and then sent to Far Rockaway for inciting a rist.

HALLUCINATIONS OF A BOY.

HALLUCINATIONS OF A BOX.

To the Editor of The Tribune.

SIR: In your issue of April 20 you publish an article headed: "Thinking he may be Cherley Ross." The boy, Arthur Jackson Searing, mentioned in the article, is my son. He has been laboring under nervous prostration and brain trouble, and has been under medical treatment for the same for the past two years. I thought that he was improving, but it would seem not. His hallucination is that some one is doing him an injury, or pursuing him unjustly.
